

Sinclair Broadcast Group's recent actions have illustrated the dangers to localism caused by media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard...

...that's the default message that I was asked to submit, but I would like to add that I have called my local Sinclair affiliate and voiced my objection, not only regarding this most recent and flagrant political partisanship, but also for the escalating number of "opinion" segments that are aired, which only promote Sinclair's political agenda.

Thank you for this opportunity to provide my input,
Roch Ducey
